Molokai Deals with First COVID-19

Grocery store where patient worked sanitized

Friendly Market Center, where Molokai's first confirmed COVID-19 individual works, closed Friday to be sanitized and cleaned as residents coped with the reality that the potentially fatal virus had reached their isolated and close-knit community.

"I basically said a short prayer," said Kimberly Mikami Svetin, president of Molokai Drugs, when finding out about the first case on her island Thursday. "I'm totally scared," said Maricel Kanemitsu of Take's Variety Store – True Value Hardware, also in Kaunakakai. "Everyone shops there, both grocery stores," she said of Friendly Market Center and Misaki's grocery store.

Kanemitsu said she and her husband decided to keep their store open because they support state and county jobs and provide cleaning and household products. "Basically the community, you know, got a reality check, they realize the situation is serious," said state Rep. Lynn DeCoite, who is also an island resident.

This shows how everyone should have listened and followed the directive to stay at home and social distance, she said.

Now residents, including her son who is a millennial, are starting to heed the government's advice and orders.

On Thursday, news broke of Molokai's first coronavirus patient, who had recently returned from Las Vegas. The person returned to Molokai on March 17 and has since been transferred to Oahu for treatment at Queen's Medical Center.

She hoped the grocery stores would not try to reopen quickly but devise a plan to reduce visits, such as through filling orders by phone. Otherwise, they may be back to square one again.

Meanwhile, businesses around Molokai shut down Friday to sanitize and clean. Oahu-based H2O Process Systems was on island to sanitize Friendly Market Center first and then other business through an effort organized by local leaders. Misaki's also closed for cleaning by the Oahu company on Friday. It will reopen today.

Lori-Lei Rawlins-Crivello, whose family operates the Rawlins Service gas station in town, said they, too, had the Oahu company clean the business. Rawlins Service closed from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. for sanitizing and planned to reopen from 3 to 7 p.m. Friday.
